Actors and Networks of Actors: The Managers of the Immigration Processes in Spain and Europe

18 June 2007

CIDOB Foundation, Barcelona

The management of immigration signifies a whole series of actors committed to the process (stakeholders), who have an influence not only on the design of immigration policies but also on their implementation. These actors range from governmental actors (administrations in general) to non-governmental ones coming from immigrant associations, non-governmental organisations, trade unions, political parties, the business class, citizens' associations and cultural foundations, among a long list of others.

This second GRIIP-CIDOB seminar aims to bring together studies that analyse immigration from the perspective of the actors involved in the process.
