

Jordi Bacaria

Professor of Applied Economics at the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB). He is also director of the journal "Foreign Affairs Latinoamérica" published in Mexico. He is a member of FEMISE (Euro-Mediterranean Forum of Economic Science Institutes). He has been Dean of the Faculty of Economics at the UAB (1986-1988) and director of the Institute for European Studies (1988-1992, 1994-2000) at the UAB. From 2000 to 2009, he coordinated the Doctoral Program in International Relations and European Integration of the UAB. From 2000 to 2013, he has been co-director of the Institute for European Integration Studies in Mexico, an institution funded by the European Commission and the Autonomous Technological Institute of Mexico. He is the author of over a hundred publications (articles, book chapters and books) on economic integration, Latin America, Mediterranean economy, monetary institutions and public choice.

Sangeeta Khorana

Professor of Economics at Bournemouth University in the UK. Her research interests and specialisation include trade governance and EU trade policy, in particular EU's bilateral trade liberalisation as well as WTO agreements, in particular procurement liberalisation. She has published extensively on these issues and has written books, several book chapters and peer reviewed articles for internationally renowned journals. She is currently guest editor of Journal of Indian Ocean Region, published by Francis and Taylor. She has a PhD from the University of St Gallen in Switzerland and holds two masters, one each from the World Trade Institute in Switzerland and Allahabad University in India. Currently she is also Research Associate with Centre for Sciences and Humanities (French funded CNRS institute) in New Delhi, India. Professor Khorana has contributed to several funded projects and written reports for the European Commission, ESRC, UNCTAD-India and the British Foreign and Commonwealth Office. She has also been invited by the European Parliament to comment on ongoing EU-India free trade agreement.

Lorand Bartels

University Senior Lecturer in Law in the Faculty of Law and a Fellow of Trinity Hall at the University of Cambridge, where he teaches international law, WTO law and EU law. Dr Bartels is a general editor of the Cambridge International Trade and Economic Law Series (CUP), an associate editor of the Journal of World Trade and an editorial board member of several journals, including the Journal of International Economic Law, the Journal of International Dispute Settlement and Legal Issues of Economic Integration. Dr Bartels has acted as expert consultant to a number of countries, NGOs and international organisations and he is a standing member of the advisory panel of the UK Department for International Development's Trade Advocacy Fund for developing countries and of an advisory panel on trade policy for the Commonwealth Secretariat.

Ricard Bellera

Secretary for International, Migration and Cooperation for the Trade Union CCOO of Catalonia. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy and communication theory. He worked as a journalist and as an intercultural manager in different projects before joining the trade union. Currently he represents his organisation in the Spanish STOP-TTIP campaign that brings together more than 400 organisations working to stop the TTIP negotiations.

Richard Craven

Senior lecturer at Northumbria Law School, Northumbria University, Newcastle upon Tyne in the UK. Richard has a broad interest in domestic, EU and the global regulation of public procurement. His research adopts a socio-legal/empirical approach, and, to date, he has conducted empirical studies of core aspects of the EU's regulation of public procurement, PPP procurement, the EU/UK procurement remedies system and social procurement. Richard has presented and published his research globally, including participation at international conferences held in the UK, Denmark, Malaysia and China. Also, recently, in 2015, Richard was awarded a prestigious British Academy/Leverhulme small grant to pursue empirical legal research into the protection of workers on government contracts.

Inmaculada Martínez-Zarzoso

Professor of Economics at the University of Göttingen in Germany and associated researcher in the Institute of International Economics at the University Jaume I (Spain). She holds a Master Degree (1994) and a PhD in International Economics (1998) from the University of Birmingham, England. Her fields of research include international economics, environmental economics and transport economics. Her recent research has been published in the Journal of International Economics, Journal of Common Market Studies, Environmental and Resource Economics, Economic Letters and Journal of Transport Economics and Policy.

Lars Nilsson

Deputy Head of the Chief Economist and Trade Analysis Unit of the European Commission's Directorate General for Trade, which he joined in 2004. He specialises in regional and bilateral aspects of EU trade policy, including EU trade policy towards developing countries, areas in which he has published widely. He is also Associate Professor of economics at Lund University, Sweden, from where he obtained his PhD. Previously, he worked for the European Commission's Directorate General for External Relations and he has also served as a Special Advisor in the Swedish Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

The co-author of the chapter is Dr Nuno Sousa is an economist working in the Chief Economist and Trade Analysis Unit of the Directorate-General for External Trade of the European Commission since 2008. Between 2004 and 2008 he worked at the Directorate-General for Economic and Financial Affairs of the European Commission. Before joining the European Commission he worked as a Lecturer in Economics at the University of Minho in Portugal. He received his PhD from the School of Economics of the University of Nottingham in 2002.

Christian Tietje

Professor (tenure) for European Law and International Economic Law, director of the Institute for Economic Law, and director of the Transnational Economic Law Research Centre (TELC) at the Law School at Martin-Luther-University Halle-Wittenberg, Germany. His primary research interests lie in the areas of EU common commercial policy and international economic law (world trade law, investment protection and arbitration, global financial markets). Christian Tietje received his legal education at the Universities of Kiel/Germany, Paris V, and University of Michigan Law School, Ann Arbor. He holds two German law degrees with distinction and has been Professor of Law since 2001. He has published several books and more than 150 articles and has advised governments, international organisations, non-governmental organisations, business associations and multilateral companies in the above-mentioned research areas. He has been appointed legal expert and arbitrator in several investment arbitrations, led a working group of the investment law committee of the German branch of the International Law Association (ILA) dealing with the relationship of international investment law and general public international law, and is a member of the "ILA Study Group on the Role of Soft Law Instruments in International Investment Law". He has been appointed by the EU to the roster of panellists for financial services under the EU-Korea free trade agreement.

Gregory Voss

Professor of Business Law at Toulouse University, Toulouse Business School (TBS), he teaches on TBS's Toulouse and Barcelona campuses. He co-directs TBS's International Management Major. He is a member of IRDEIC (Research Institute in European, International and Comparative Law), a Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence, Toulouse 1 Capitole University. He is admitted as an attorney (New York), avocat (Toulouse), and solicitor (England and Wales, non-practising). Prior to teaching, he worked in private practice and in industry. He is Co-Chair of the American Bar Association Section of International Law's Privacy, E-Commerce, and Data Security Committee, and Immediate Past Chair of their International Intellectual Property Rights Committee. He also is a Fellow of the European Law Institute, member of numerous other scientific institutes and academies and professional organisations, and has written on European Union and American law, primarily in the fields of privacy, data protection and security, and e-commerce law. He holds a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Michigan Law School, a post-graduate degree in Law and Information Systems from the Toulouse 1 Capitole University, and a Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service from Georgetown University.

Álvaro Schweinfurth

Deputy Director of the International Affairs Department in charge of trade, development and policies related to the promotion of trade and investment abroad. Counsellor of the Economic and Social Council of Spain. Previously, he worked for nine years in a solar energy company as Project Manager. He has a degree in Law and a Master's from the Instituto de Empresa.