Jerusalem: Evictions, settlements, and discrimination

Israel captured West Jerusalem during the 1948 war, and illegally occupied and annexed East Jerusalem in 1967 in contravention to international law and UN resolutions. Since then, Israeli measures—including the annexation of adjacent land, forcible displacement, home demolitions, the construction of a high concrete separation Wall on occupied territory, and the use of a very stringent permit regime for Palestinian residents—have increasingly cut off East Jerusalem from the rest of the Palestinian Occupied Territories. The area incorporated in Jerusalem's expanded municipal border after 1967 comprises around 370,000 Palestinians and some 208,000 Israeli settlers. Palestinians who had temporarily left Jerusalem lost their right to return to their homes, while the rest became "permanent residents" (not equal citizens) in Israel—a legal status given to any foreign national wishing to reside in Israel. Overall, 35% of the land in East Jerusalem has been expropriated for Israeli settlement use; 76% of Palestinian residents and 83% of the children live below the Israeli-defined poverty line, and nearly 15,000 Palestinians have had their residency revoked. Though they pay taxes, Palestinians suffer from vastly unequal public investment in their infrastructure, schools and health facilities.

OSLO INTERIM AGREEMENT
- Area A
- Area B
- Area C

PALESTINIAN COMMUNITIES
- Build-up area

ISRAELI SETTLEMENTS
- Built-up area
- Municipal area
- Israeli military base
- Israel Inner Settlement
- Road Barrier

WEST BANK BARRIER
- Constructed
- Under construction or planned

CHECKPOINTS AND BARRIERS
- Internal Checkpoint (staffed)
- Internal Partial Checkpoint
- Green Line Checkpoint
- Observation Tower
- Green Line (1949)
- Israeli unilaterally declared Jerusalem boundary